RE: City of Boston Broadband Infrastructure, Public Computing and Sustainable Broadband Applications to NTIA

To Whom It May Concern:

I am counsel for the City of Boston's Management and Information Services (the "Applicant"). In such capacity, I acted as counsel to the Applicant in connection with its application to the Broadband Technology Opportunities Program, and in the review of the grant agreement, as referenced in the Notice of Funds Availability.

I am of the opinion that:

- (a) the Applicant is one of the City of Boston's departments, which is a duly organized and existing municipal corporation under the laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
- (b) the Applicant has corporate power: (1) to execute and deliver the grant agreement; and (2) to perform all acts required to be done by it under said agreement.
- (c) no legal proceedings have been instituted or are pending against the Applicant, the outcome of which would adversely affect the Applicant's ability to perform the duties under the grant agreement, and there are no judgments against the Applicant which would adversely affect the Applicant's ability to perform the duties under the grant agreement.

Re: Statement of Commitment of Matching Funds (O. 37, Public Computing Grant)
From: William Oates, CIO, City of Boston
Date: August 10, 2009

The City of Boston will provide $410,000 match to supplement the matching funds available from the Boston Public Library ($50,000) and BHA Tenants Councils ($7,800). In total, these three sources of match will provide 20% of the total Public Computing Project cost.

We have thoroughly examined all available sources of funding within applicable City budgets and have identified the funds to support this commitment, despite exceptionally difficult fiscal challenges. Without federal grant assistance, this public computing project cannot be implemented.

RE: NTIA Public Computing Grant -- Matching Funds

Dear Mr. Oates:

The Boston Public Library (BPL) is committed to contributing $50K in matching funds for the purposes of supporting the NTIA Public Computing Grant. The $50K in funding is state aid appropriated to the BPL to support our information technology initiatives.

The BPL's FY10 budget was reduced by 14% (a $6.9M decrease) from FY09 funding levels. Major cuts to personnel, facilities, materials, and information technology were implemented to meet this year's operating costs. As a result, there is no additional money beyond the $50K match to support the public computing project proposal. Without the NTIA funding, the BPL cannot continue with this initiative.

Please do not hesitate to contact me should you need additional information.

Sincerely,

Dear Bill:

WGBH, Boston's public television station, is pleased to support the city of Boston's NTIA BTOP application. Making technology more widely available to city residents is critical to diminish the digital divide. As a community agency committed to serving all members of our region, we greatly appreciate the opportunities that this grant will afford Boston residents to better access and interact with WGBH's educational digital content. We believe that stimulating broadband demand long term is a key part of helping our communities gain access to tools, content, and resources conducive for formal education and lifelong learning.

In this proposal, WGBH is partnering with the Lila Frederick School to pilot, then scale a home/school series of activities that mesh with Boston's award winning Technology Goes Home (TGH) program. Designed to increase family/student interaction, while at the same time increase the skills taught to families in TGH, WGBH will work with an eighth grade teacher, her class and their families participating in TGH, to develop a "Taking it Home" curriculum tied to WGBH Teachers' Domain—a freely available online educational service. As currently conceptualized, the families and students will be able to access broadband video clips at home from the Teachers' Domain civil rights collection, and other educational content from the WGBH archives. We intend to work closely with our target audience and the City of Boston to develop a series of activities that help people develop digital media literacy and skills required for today's job market. Once tested, the activities will be shared with other TGH schools throughout Boston and become a permanent feature on Teachers' Domain.

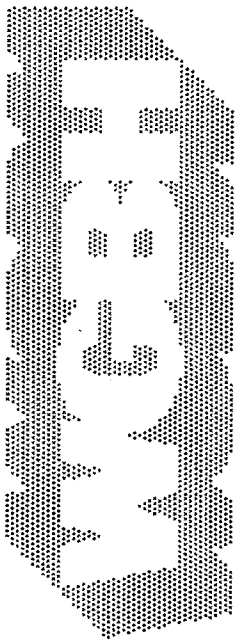

Teachers' Domain has almost 400,000 registered users and is used in 67% of US schools. 30 public television stations throughout the country have branded Teachers' Domain as their own educational service. We have contacted several of our partner stations, such as WNET (NY) and WPSU (PA) about this project and they responded quite positively. All this means is that through Teachers' Domain, we have the capacity to distribute "Taking it Home" to schools and families throughout the US.

We look forward to working with Boston on this most exciting endeavor. We believe strongly that activities like the one we are proposing address the true spirit of this initiative. Please do not hesitate to call to further discuss our collaboration and how we can support your initiative.

Dear Assistant Secretary Strickling:

The Massachusetts Department of Telecommunications and Cable (MDTC) is the state agency charged with regulating the telecommunications and cable industries in Massachusetts. The MDTC is also a member of the governing board of the Massachusetts Broadband Institute, the state entity charged with expanding broadband access across Massachusetts. The City of Boston provided the MDTC with copies of its applications for Broadband Stimulus funding in three categories: Infrastructure, Public Computing Centers, and Sustainable Broadband Adoption. The MDTC has reviewed the proposals for broadband adoption set forth in those grants and offers the following observations.

The City of Boston's stated objective is to address two compelling problems utilizing broadband tools: digital inclusion for residents of its lowest income neighborhoods, and public safety enhancements. Both of those objectives represent important urban imperatives, not only for Boston, but for other cities in the Commonwealth and across the country.

The MDTC believes that that the comprehensive approach set forth in Boston's grants represents best practices that could be replicated by other municipalities in Massachusetts, and nationally. Boston has expressed its commitment to work with other cities across the state to help replicate Boston's comprehensive approach. The MDTC wishes to highlight some of the key features of Boston's 3-Grant strategy that are particularly noteworthy.

Boston's Infrastructure grant puts forth a plan to deploy a wireless/fiber network to provide free of charge Internet connectivity into the homes of its lowest income, most vulnerable citizens.

Boston correctly acknowledges that home Internet access alone will not result in broadband adoption, and that digital inclusion requires much more than access. Boston's other grants propose promising solutions to provide computer access and education components essential for an effective digital inclusion program.

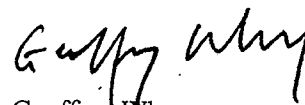

In its Public Computing grant, Boston has recognized that many of its underserved citizens do not have home computers. Broadband adoption will not occur unless these citizens have easy access to public computing in local centers that can also provide training in the basics of computer use and provide clear examples showing the life relevance and importance of Internet connectivity. Boston's public computing grant proposes to meet this need through a significant increase in public computing access and training in public libraries, centers for youth and families, and in public housing computer labs.

Boston's Sustainable Broadband Adoption Grant proposes to significantly expand its family broadband adoption program, Technology Goes Home (TGH). TGH was singled out as an example of a successful technology broadband adoption program in a letter from the Massachusetts Executive Office of Housing and Economic Development (EOHED) to the Obama transition team entitled Broadband Investment for Economic Recovery (See attached letter). TGH provides families of Boston schoolchildren the technology and Internet life-relevance training as well as low cost computers to fully integrate broadband into their lives at home. Under Boston's grant proposal, the TGH curriculum and home computers will be made available not only in the 52 schools where this program is currently offered, but will be expanded to residents participating in training offered in Boston's public computing centers. This will greatly expand the number of residents who will have the knowledge and the home computers to utilize Boston's free at-home network connectivity provided by Boston's Infrastructure grant proposal.

The MDTC also notes that Boston's proposal includes plans to dual-purpose its broadband network with public safety software capability to provide "hot spots" for police in the field, giving them on-demand access to crime fighting data, resulting in more time for officers on the street and less time at headquarters. This public safety innovation could also be a model replicated by other municipalities.

The MDTC is pleased to offer assistance to and ongoing support for the City of Boston's grant proposals and looks forward to working with Boston and other municipalities or state entities toward expanded broadband access and adoption. Please do not hesitate to contact the MDTC with any questions.

Sincerely,

Geoffrey Why

Boston City Hall

Dear Bill:

I am writing on behalf of the Timothy Smith Network (TSN) to offer our support for the City of Boston's efforts to procure funding to complete its Broadband Network in the underserved neighborhoods of Boston and to expand the number of public computer centers at Boston Public Libraries, Boston Housing Authority developments, and at Boston Center for Youth and Family sites. Technology Goes Home and the Online Learning Readiness Program will provide participants with the technical, workforce, and life-long learning skills they need to effectively harness these resources to improve their lives and to prepare for 21st century jobs.

The TSN, through its 34 affiliated members, provides residents of the greater Roxbury Community of Boston critical access to technology by providing technology-related services, educational programs and resources, bridging the digital divide for individuals who otherwise might not have access to this important technology. The enthusiastic participation of residents during the pilot program to bring affordable, high-speed Internet access to the Grove Hall-Dudley neighborhood demonstrated the need for such services in that and similar areas of the City. The drop off in utilization once fees, though minimal, were established showed that free Internet access is the only way for many residents of Boston to afford such access in their homes.

The TSN is pleased to offer my support for these three projects. Once implemented they will provide the technical infrastructure together with a network of collaborating organizations working together to improve technology skill levels for an entire city.

Thank you very much for considering this letter of support, and I trust that we will all be successful in developing the much needed broadband network and support resources for the improvement of the citizens of Boston.

Sincerely,

Addressing multi-lingual needs of our user community for public training sessions at the BPL.

The BPL is keenly aware of the diversity of languages being spoken in our communities. Our main response to this has been to offer an equally diverse array of print and audio-visual materials at our neighborhood branches corresponding to the major languages spoken in each community. Identifying training and other programming needs at this level can be accomplished using the same demographic information used by our Collection Development and Neighborhood Services departments. Additionally and perhaps more efficiently, we will plan foreign language trainings on an on-demand basis by offering a language option in our registration forms. The Project Manager will help develop these forms and coordinate a strategy whereby a qualified, language-appropriate training session will be available within four weeks of the registrant's request. This training staff may be developed internally or recruited through a volunteer program. The BPL's Homework Assistance Program uses a similar, on-demand, strategy to connect their customers to language appropriate mentors. The Dudley Literacy Center (the only BPL branch currently offering computer literacy training) has been successful in recruiting foreign-language speaking volunteers from their ESL classes to help with other programs. Staff may be actual trainers, fluent in the requested language, or translators working along side English-speaking trainers.

While current BPL staff is almost as equally diverse in language skills across the major languages spoken in the City (English, French or French Creole, Chinese, Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian), they are not necessarily yet qualified to conduct basic computer training. These staff members may be sent to our "train the trainer" sessions (currently offered at our Dudley Literacy Center) in order to get them the necessary skills to become qualified public instructors.

Though the BPL may not necessarily plan a regular schedule of non-English training sessions, we feel confident that we can respond to the needs of our foreign language speaking community in a precise and flexible manner. The frequency of these programs will depend on the demand from the community. Furthermore, foreign-language awareness is already a piece of the curriculum at the Dudley Literacy Center. Students are asked to navigate to the bottom of a web page and click on a foreign-language option in order to understand the issues with navigating the internet in a non-native tongue.
