To whom it may concern:

The Information Technology & Telecommunication Services division of Fayetteville State University is happy to submit this letter in support of the NCCU School of Law Virtual Justice Broadband Project being considered for funding through the Federal BTOP program. As a participating anchor institution, our university is excited about the potential of this project to increase broadband adoption, enhance technological capacity, and strengthen programs at the university.

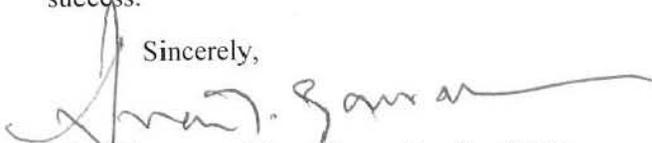

Our university is not only committed to providing the best-possible education to our students, but we value the role we play as an anchor and resource to our local community. We share North Carolina's commitment to broadband connectivity, because we recognize the potential of broadband to link students to educational opportunities, and individuals to vital social resources. The Virtual Justice project offers our undergraduates invaluable exposure to legal concepts and preparation for careers in law. Likewise, through our institution, the NCCU School of Law clinical program will greatly magnify its impact on legal representation for low-median income individuals.

The Virtual Justice project brings multiple statewide priorities, including broadband adoption, distance learning, and legal justice into focus. With the support and participation of our institution, this project can make a significant impact on the state of North Carolina.

In addition to the in-kind contribution of space, our institution is also providing broadband access, network and systems support, and facility maintenance to support the site that will be utilized for this project. The approximate value of our in-kind contribution, over a two-year period, is $120,000.

As the Chief Information Officer and Vice Chancellor at Fayetteville State University, I have full confidence in the level of dedication and expertise that NCCU School of Law will bring to this project, and we look forward to lending our resources towards making the project a success.

Sincerely,

Nick Ganesan, Vice Chancellor for ITTS

Dear Mr. Clinton:

As you are aware, MCNC was successful at securing round one Broadband Technology Opportunities Program (BTOP) Funds of $28.2M to build our $40M NCREN broadband project. We expect this award will be a tremendous boost for education and economic development in the rural southeastern and western parts of North Carolina that are directly impacted.

As we and your staff have noted, four areas of the state remain significantly underserved in their access to broadband technologies. Community Anchor Institutions across education, government, healthcare and research in these areas find themselves offering a lower level of digital services to their constituents. Consumers and small businesses find it difficult to participate in the growing digital economy.

I am writing to offer my encouragement and support for North Carolina Central University's leadership in submitting a round two BTOP Sustainable Broadband application that would build the NCCU School of Law Virtual Justice Broadband Project, a regional interactive video collaborative for all of North Carolina. This project lies squarely in the path of our BTOP 1 proposal, and immediately adjacent to our North Carolina Rural Broadband Initiative BTOP 2 proposal that covers the counties in Northeastern North Carolina, North Central North Carolina, South Central North Carolina and far Northwestern North Carolina. These geographic regions contain almost one-half of the counties in the State. These counties are beset by high unemployment, low incomes and a high incidence of health related maladies. MCNC is happy to support your proposal because of the positive impact that your project will have on broadband adoption and telejustice in North Carolina.

As a leading advocate for broadband expansion and adoption, MCNC recognizes the vital resource broadband represents for families and communities across the state. Through the expansion of the North Carolina Research and Education Network (NCREN), MCNC has created better access to distance learning, telehealth, economic development, and other social benefits for North Carolinians. The Virtual Justice Project that you have developed will leverage MCNC efforts, by extending adaptable technology and broadband awareness into underserved communities, and by expanding distance learning and legal justice opportunities to communities in need.

Because of the tremendous potential of the Virtual Justice Project, it is a privilege to support your application to the National Telecommunication Information Association for the Broadband Technology Opportunities Program/ Sustainable Broadband Adoption Program. Should the project move forward, I will look forward to the opportunity discuss ways in which MCNC can support your efforts to bring legal justice through broadband access.

Sincerely,

John Killebrew

Dear Mr. Clinton:

Kontek Systems is pleased to support your application to the National Telecommunications and Information Administration for the Broadband Technology Opportunities Program. We believe that NCCU's Virtual Justice initiative represents a unique opportunity to extend the University's proven legal clinic services and educational programs to under-served communities in North Carolina, using the power of broadband video technology.

We are very proud of Kontek's ten year history of collaboration with NCCU in helping build a nationally recognized law school technology program, and are looking forward to serving as your audio/video systems integration partner for the Virtual Justice project.

We are confident that North Carolina Central University will be successful with your Broadband Technology Program application and we gladly extend our support to you in this endeavor.

BTOP Sustainable Broadband Adoption Community Anchor Institution Detail Template

Please complete the Anchor Institution Details worksheet by providing information on Community Anchor Institutions that will be directly involved in or benefit from the project. Add rows as necessary. All community anchor institutions should be given a specified list. A Community Anchor Institution is considered a minority-serving institution post-secondary educational institution with enrollment of minority students exceeding total enrollment. The "Role" column only requires a word or two, or a short phrase, no explanation. A detailed explanation of the role of project partners and community anchor institutions should be provided in the essay portions of the application.

The data provided via this template will be subject to automated processing. Applicants are therefore required to provide this upload as an Excel file, and not to convert it to a PDF upload. Additionally, applicants should not modify the format of this file.

Dear Mr. Clinton,

Please accept this letter as one of support for your BTOP grant application to reach underserved populations with courses and informational programming through the NCCU School of Law Virtual Justice Broadband Project.

At the University of North Carolina at Pembroke, we have worked with our community partners including UNCP's Regional Center for Economic, Community, and Professional Development, Cape Fear Valley Medical Center, and Community Colleges; Sandhills, Bladen, Brunswick, Robeson, and Central Carolina to submit our BTOP application to create the Community Interactive Video Collaborative, Easygrant application number 5789. We are excited about the possibilities this Collaborative will provide for furthering the educational obtainment for individuals in our region.

The Community Interactive Video Collaborative creates interactive video facilities at community partner sites for the delivery of degree programming, informal type activities, and valuable information sharing and educational opportunities to underserved populations within our region. There are many synergies between the NCCU project and the UNCP led project. I am please to write and offer our support for your efforts.

We hope both applications are successful as we may share programming activities and work collaboratively to service the collective needs of so many under-served areas of North Carolina. These areas are badly in need of additional educational opportunities. Furthering the education obtainment of the citizens of North Carolina is critical for a successful state future and a healthy economy.

Best regards,

Robert L. Orr
Associate Vice Chancellor for Information Resources and CIO

Dear Mr. Clinton:

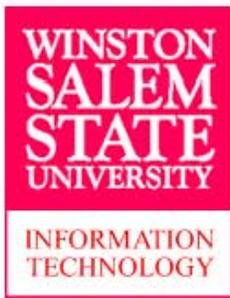

Polycom is excited that you are moving forward to provide advanced telejustice, education and consultation services to your communities. North Carolina Central University is versed in the efficacy and efficiency of legal consult, education and services through telecommunications. We are confident that you will embark on unsurpassed legal services to at risk, vulnerable and underserved communities throughout North Carolina.

We have witnessed the impact of real-time judicial, education and health service delivery in other states and understand the impact it has for vulnerable community members. Your application to the National Telecommunication Information Association for the Broadband Technology Program/ Sustainable Broadband Program, directly addresses the BTOP objectives of improving access to broadband services to consumers residing in underserved areas of the country and improve access to education. North Carolina Central University will create an enormous impact for the vulnerable communities they are reaching out to through the use of technology and telecommunications that will leverage MCNC's broadband deployment.

It is a privilege to work with North Carolina Central University and participate in their project to strengthen and serve both underserved and vulnerable communities across North Carolina. Polycom is confident that North Carolina Central University will be successful with their Broadband Technology Program application and we gladly extend our support to them.

Sincerely-

Jennifer Messinger

To whom it may concern:

Winston-Salem State University's Information Technology is happy to submit this letter in support of the NCCU School of Law Virtual Justice Broadband Project being considered for funding through the Federal BTOP program. As a participating anchor institution, our university is excited about the potential of this project to increase broadband adoption, enhance technological capacity, and strengthen programs at the university.

Our university is not only committed to providing the best-possible education to our students, but we value the role we play as an anchor and resource to our local community. We share North Carolina's commitment to broadband connectivity, because we recognize the potential of broadband to link students to educational opportunities, and individuals to vital social resources. The Virtual Justice project offers our undergraduates invaluable exposure to legal concepts and preparation for careers in law. Likewise, through our institution, the NCCU School of Law clinical program will greatly magnify its impact on legal representation for low-median income individuals.

The Virtual Justice project brings multiple statewide priorities, including broadband adoption, distance learning, and legal justice into focus. With the support and participation of our institution, this project can make a significant impact on the state of North Carolina.

In addition to the in-kind contribution of space, our institution is also providing broadband access, network and systems support, and facility maintenance to support the site that will be utilized for this project. The approximate value of our in-kind contribution, over a two-year period, is $120,000.

We have full confidence in the level of dedication and expertise that NCCU School of Law will bring to this project, and we look forward to lending our resources towards making the project a success.

Sincerely,
