C. Executive Summary

Executive Summary of Project for BIP and BTOP:

8. Infrastructure Projects Executive Summary

Statement of Problem: This BTOP Application for middle mile upgrading meets four of the BTOP statutory objectives. Project Connect South Dakota will serve South Dakota which is experiencing all the issues of a sparse and in some areas a declining population base. According to the US Census Bureau, South Dakota from 2000 to 2008 gained 6.75% in population with a population density of 9.9 residents per square mile. The statewide number does not illustrate the emptying of the rural areas to the cities. One example, Kingsbury County in east central South Dakota in the same eight years lost 7.2% in population and the population density is 6.4 residents per square mile. Another issue is distance between services. Typical of any Western state, wide open spaces are a fact of life and the nearest medical center could be hours away. If the local school closes, sons and daughters often have to move miles away during the school year to another town where a school is located.

Healthcare providers and the public schools have found the solution to serving sparse populations is broadband. State government operates a distance learning school program. It is accomplished through a wide area network (WAN) for the public K12 and public universities. The company submitting this grant, South Dakota Network, LLC (SDN Communications), has supported for over a decade the efforts of these community anchor institutions.

With the ever expanding capabilities of technology, the need for expanding bandwidth to help community anchor institutions has grown. SDN has built more local fiber to many desired locations. Today SDN, regional healthcare, and state government need even higher bandwidth speeds. Additionally as referenced above, there is a growing need to keep communities viable despite declining populations. Strained state and hospital budgets cannot support the deployment of fiber-based network facilities to these locations. Funds requested in Project Connect will support the classroom and healthcare video applications that currently cannot be fully deployed or supported.

In the communities served by this project, the increased bandwidth will help attract businesses, allow for coordination of public safety agencies and, in general, provide access to better internet service for all customers.

Overall Approach: The project will use ARRA funds to add backbone capacity to leverage the existing network of SDN and use ARRA funds to specifically target some intercity fiber deployment in areas where SDN has not placed fiber in the past due to economic infeasibility. The existing SDN network and the proposed extensions utilize Dense Wave Division Multiplexing (DWDM) electronics to deliver broadband service. The DWDM architecture permits seamless increases in bandwidth capacity by simply changing electronics at network end points in the future. SDN estimates that a minimum of 344 community anchor and public safety agencies will be added to the network. These new sites will complement the over 232 hospital, clinic, school, library, university and government locations already served by SDN on fiber based infrastructure.

SDN needs funds for the fiber construction, premise equipment, middle mile DWDM electronic equipment, end-point electronics, plus permitting, engineering and BTOP application development fees. These funds will create a basic network architecture needed to support the delivery of a minimum of 10 Megabits to the institutions and agencies.

Area to be Served: The Project Connect application is for upgrading its middle mile span. This will be a statewide upgrade of SDN's network to improve connectivity. Non rural areas make up 28% of the end points to be served by the project with 72% being rural.

Specifically, end-point school customers include 234 public high and middle schools, and 18 libraries not including school libraries that often serve as community libraries. The healthcare industry has 58 hospitals and clinics that will be upgraded. Government entities will additionally benefit - 47 courthouses; 131 federal/state government agency buildings; and 34 National Guard facilities.

The ongoing partnership with Mitchell Technical Institute (MTI) will strengthen. SDN will use funding to provide state-of-the-art equipment and technology for use in training students for careers in broadband applications and deployment. MTI will also be able to provide continuing education and training opportunities for the management and staff of SDN and other technology providers and users in the state.

Qualifications of the Applicant: SDN was established 20 years ago to fill gaps in the telecommunications infrastructure and service delivery of long distance calls. In 1995 SDN added broadband service for its customers. Since then SDN has established itself as the premier telecommunications provider in South Dakota and most recently in the region as the primary contractor for the South Dakota Research Education Economic Development (REED) Network, which connects state government, state universities, the deep underground Sanford Lab at Homestake in the Black Hills and the EROS Data Center. SDN has a strong, ongoing relationship with regional health care providers and state government within the state. SDN supports the efforts of business in communities throughout the state. Additionally, SDN provides a 24x7 Network Surveillance Center monitoring thousands of network devices and interfaces for customers including state government, and it operates a cable TV headend providing the latest in industry video applications.

SDN does not unlawfully discriminate in its interconnection and service obligations, practices or policies. Its broadband policies and practices can be found on its website, which is updated regularly for customers. SDN has no customer or other complaints regarding service or other matters pending before federal or state regulators.

SDN's 20 years of experience demonstrate its ability to operate and maintain this project. The technology to be employed is state-of-the-art and currently in use in the existing network. The operational staff is in place, the management team has a proven record of success in the business.

Economic Development through Jobs: This is a middle mile project so job growth is difficult to estimate. What can be argued is the project will help keep communities viable as a place to live and work. Businesses settle where there are community anchor institutions and possibilities for success. Agribusinesses operating in South Dakota need improved bandwidth. Service companies and individuals that support agribusiness, healthcare, education, financial institutions, communications, and tourism can thrive and create job opportunities where they have enough bandwidth. These kinds of businesses in a community can lead to enough customers for an improved grocery store and similar facilities that foster a sustainable community in rural South Dakota.

Description of BTOP Project Purpose (BTOP Applicants Only Next Three Questions)

9. BTOP Statutory Purpose:

Provide improved access to broadband service to consumers residing in “underserved” areas of the United States.
Provide broadband education, awareness, training, access, equipment, and support to schools, libraries, medical and healthcare providers, community colleges and other institutions of higher education, and other community support organizations by or through these organizations.
Improve access to, and use of, broadband service by public safety agencies.
Stimulate the demand for broadband, economic growth, and job creation.

10. Description of BTOP Project Purpose:

The project supports four of the statutory objectives of the BTOP Program as follows:

Improved Access to broadband service to customers in underserved areas: Project Connect monies will be used to upgrade middle mile spans of the statewide SDN network. The upgrade will provide 10 megabits to customers with the possibility of increasing bandwidth at a later time. The targeted customers, community anchor institutions, will be connected in underserved rural and non-rural areas throughout the state.

Provide broadband education, awareness, training, access equipment and support to-Schools, libraries, medical and health care providers, community colleges and other institutions of higher education and other support organizations by or through these organizations: The predominant reason for this project is to provide the necessary increased bandwidth for community anchor institutions. The South Dakota Department of Education supports distance learning to over three hundred public schools systems. Project Connect South Dakota will enable the WAN to increase bandwidth to 87 public high schools and 23 public middle schools. Sixty four private school buildings will also benefit from the upgrade.

The Project will allow a potential upgrading of connectivity for the Universities located in South Dakota. The increased bandwidth is especially important for higher education research capabilities.

Critical access hospitals and outpatient clinics utilize technology to bring to their patients the benefits of distance diagnostics. Altogether 76 hospitals and clinics will have access to increased connectivity.

Improved access to and use of broadband service by public safety agencies: The project will offer over 20 cities the opportunity to apply improved technology in serving their citizens. Besides the city halls, police and fire departments being served in the cities, 48 courthouses will benefit. The service area includes 167 federal and state government agency buildings that need to upgrade their technology abilities. Lastly, 39 national guard facilities will be served by the networks.

Stimulate the demand for broadband, economic growth and job creation: South Dakota Network, LLC (dba SDN Communications) (“SDN”) is owned by 19 independent and cooperative telecommunications companies in South Dakota. SDN Communications works with the owner companies to help them provide internet connectivity and support to their communities at the end point. Everyone is aware that a good business climate requires access to high speed internet.

A minimum of 26% of the customers benefiting from Project Connect are in the larger communities of South Dakota. High speed internet is a major factor in attracting businesses. While non-rural areas may not struggle to secure a customer base, the availability to access 10 megabit broadband is a key to continued business expansion.

Important for businesses in underserved rural areas is the ability to get their product to customers outside of the immediate environment. One small example, agribusinesses such as elevators that buy and sell grains can operate in a small community, if they are able to use the internet to sell worldwide. The ability for the elevator to sell grain allows farmers a shorter distance to drive to sell their product and a better price. The presence of successful farming operations leads in the area to other small businesses thriving. The end result is stabilizing the population. Improved technology can help achieve the same result with any industry - tourism, small manufacturing- regardless the population numbers. Any business success regardless the area leads to jobs and an improved economic outlook.

11. BTOP Enhanced Services for Health Care Delivery, Education, and Children:

The majority of anchor institutions served by Project Connect are health care and education providers. Both groups use technology to provide benefits for their constituents.

The Project works with two health care providers - Avera and Sanford - that have expertise in using telemedicine to serve rural areas. Their services reduce costs for both the health care providers and the patient. Telemedicine allows the patient to travel to a local community and have real time consultation with a doctor. The elderly benefit the most. Health care service close to home allows the elderly to stay home at a time in their lives when remaining connected to what is familiar is important for quality of life. Close to home services saves family members from taking the time off from work to drive an elderly parent to a distant appointment. Depending on where a patient lives in the state, a home clinic can save significant dollars in hotel and travel costs incurred when a member of the family needs medical attention.

An issue, impossible to assign a monetary value, is peace of mind. Living a long distance from a medical facility is a constant worry when families think of dealing with a medical emergency. The response during the first few minutes of a medical incident can be the difference between life and death. Rural clinics with telemedicine capabilities are seen as a vital service to live in a rural environment.

The government's critical access hospital program keeps hospitals in rural areas. These institutions would need much bigger equipment budgets, raising the cost of their services, if they did not have telemedicine support. The hospital staff and patients all benefit from the enhanced record keeping, testing and diagnostic capabilities possible through telemedicine.

Distance learning is the South Dakota Department of Education's answer to delivering needed classes in a declining enrollment environment. This program is delivered to rural and non-rural schools. The overwhelming majority of schools districts do not have a large student enrollment for grades 6 through 12. The small student base limits the number of teachers that can be employed and in turn limits the number of courses that can be offered. Another issue, the shortage of qualified teachers is especially acute statewide in the science and math areas. The explosion of knowledge has caused all subject areas to teach skills at much earlier grade levels. Today students graduating from high school, who are prepared for college, already have taken what in the past were freshman college level courses.

Distance learning using technology is a teaching tool with many benefits. First, the program is able to hire the best teachers and students statewide benefit from their expertise. The program enables students in small districts to prepare for success in college. Science and math are two subjects critical to our national interests. Distance learning keeps students interested in and improves performance in these subjects. School districts using distance learning meet North Central Certification standards and can remain open. In sparsely settled areas, locally situated schools keep children at home during the school year. Small communities benefit because schools are vital in keeping a stable population base.

17. Methodology for Area Status:

Monies for Project Connect South Dakota are to help fill in gaps of broadband service for community anchor institutions. Although the project is for middle mile upgrading, end point surveys had to be used to determine the percentage of rural and non-rural being served. Of special interest were the institutions locations that would be cost prohibitive in the normal course of business for SDN. Using the above qualifiers, the staff compiling the service area for the grant reviewed the statewide delivery of broadband. Sites were selected that would benefit from a 10 Megabit connectivity and were difficult to reach. The first list of potential sites was then reviewed to determine if any other broadband provider carrier was providing service to these anchor institutions. If another provider was available, the institution was removed from the project. The result is a list of the almost 300 sites that are now covered in the project.

The next step was to determine if the sites met the definition of unserved or underserved. To make this determination, the member companies were asked to apply the definitions stated in the NFOA to each site in their service area.

The next task was to develop the measure that would help determine the percentage of rural sites being served. Of the 575 institutions, many are in rural areas where due to sparsity the best measure is square miles. There are institutions on the list that are located in non-rural areas but it was determined that using square miles was a fair standard for South Dakota towns because in many cases the institution was the only one in the community.

Each of the 575 anchor institutions was assigned a rural or non-rural status. Then the square miles was determined for each site. This value was related to the immediate service area of the institution. Once the sites were tallied, the total miles of the project service area was determined. The result is a services area of 479 square miles. Non-rural institutions comprised 28% of the service are for Project Connect. The rural area comprised 72% of the total project.

The determination was that Project Connect had to be a BTOP application.

18. Middle Mile Benefits

Project Connect is bringing connectivity directly to community anchor institutions. The Project will target three categories of anchor institutions - schools and libraries; health care providers; and government and safety agencies.

The increased connectivity for schools and libraries will be accomplished by working with the state's WAN to the individual buildings. SDN and the state have already worked together on this network for several years. The targeted education buildings in Project Connect are those that increasing bandwidth availability would require a large expenditure of resources. Acquiring the needed resources through the school's budget and/or SDN and its owners is not viable in the near future, if at all.

The targeted health care buildings are part of the Avera or Sanford Health Care Systems. The project will continue a working relationship between each of the companies and SDN. The decision to target specific clinics and hospitals was based on the resources needed to get to a building. Like the schools, it was deemed that the targeted locations would be delayed in upgrading services without the ARRA funds.

In the project, the targeted government and public safety buildings are not part of one network such as the schools or not tied to just one or two companies. Increasing connectivity will depend on working with a SDN member company or SDN having to establish a connection. Project funds will make possible servicing these buildings that may have had to wait for years to secure funds through their budgets.

This is a very important project to the state of South Dakota. The geography of the state is mile upon mile of wide open spaces with many miles between communities. The lack of population in the towns throughout the state is a constant issue in providing vital services. When a 1950 map of communities is compared with a 2009 map, what leaps out are all the communities that are no longer there. Project Connect could literally be the difference between a small community surviving with school, library, health care and other vital services for its residents or becoming another community that has disappeared from a map.

South Dakota Network, LLC (dba SDN Communications) (“SDN”) is owned by 27 independent and cooperative telecommunications companies in South Dakota. It was initially formed in 1989 to operate a tandem switch providing centralized equal access and wholesale, re-sold long distance services for its owner companies. Starting in the mid-1990s, SDN deployed a statewide broadband network providing data transport and internet services to its owner companies. With that internet deployment, the company expanded its customer base to commercial customers including entities like state government, schools, banks and health care providers. SDN has consistently provided retail and wholesale broadband access and services to anyone who requests it for any lawful purpose so long as the customer acts in accordance with established tariff and/or contractual obligations. SDN will connect its broadband and data transport services directly or indirectly to a customer making a bona fide request at any point on its network funded by the ARRA program where technically feasible without exceeding current or reasonably anticipated capacity limitations, and at reasonable and competitive prices and terms negotiated with requesting parties.

SDN is knowledgeable of, adheres to, and will continue to adhere to the FCC principles stated in its Internet Policy Statement (FCC 05-151) and does not favor any lawful Internet content or SDN prominently displays its network management policies on its web page (www.sdncommunications.com) and that web notice will be updated to clearly state the specific requirements of this program. Notices to customers of any change in those policies are posted on the web. SDN is willing to use binding private arbitration to resolve broadband interconnection obligation disputes.

27. Affordability

The focus of SDN in Project Connect is to provide a cost effective, fiber based Ethernet service for community anchoring sites in South Dakota. Based on conversations with the user community, a 10Mbps Ethernet service is what will be needed to meet technology demands in the years to come.

Traditional TDM based services are available in all of the markets this project will serve. In the past, these TDM based services have provided reliable connectivity at available speeds. But, healthcare and education needs for greater speeds cannot be satisfied cost effectively using a TDM system. Bandwidth increases in a TDM architecture are limited to either small 1.5Mbps increments are forced to jump by 42Mbps to DS3 speeds.

As an example; SDN estimates that three (3) DS1 circuits extending 25 miles will have costs totaling nearly $1,400. These three circuits produce a usable circuit speed of 4.5Mbps. Similarly, seven (7) DS1 circuits are needed to produce 10.5Mbps of throughput. Our project will provide fiber based Ethernet at costs that are roughly 50% of the current delivery systems.

At the completion of the project, the higher speeds for present day needs for tele-health consultation or video based class room instruction will be in place. Technology's demand for higher speed never ends. This project will have additionally put in place solutions that can accommodate increasing demand for higher speeds. Lastly, the rates resulting from use of the ARRA funds are far more cost effective than traditional methods and scale quickly for diverse needs.

29. System Design

Existing network connectivity will be expanded through additional builds and operating leases. In both networks, the system is designed to provide symmetrical 10 Megabit Ethernet services to all customers. Project monies will bring this service to various community anchor institutions. Specifically included are public high and middle schools, private schools, healthcare industry hospitals and clinics, government entities and the National Guard.

Key Network Elements:

The key network elements within the system design are 1.) additional fiber builds; 2.) supplements to the existing DWDM network; 3.) MPLS network 4.) additional aggregation node capacity; 5.) network endpoints and 6.) core router.

Project funded components:

1.) Additional Fiber Builds: The fiber builds are required to provide additional connectivity to the targeted community anchor institutions that will be the customers of the network. Fiber has been chosen for these builds since it will provide the same service capability to all of the end users of the network. The initial system will provide 10 Megabit Ethernet services to these anchor institutions. With the customer network endpoints being fed by either 100Megabit or 1 Gigabit optics, the system can easily be upgraded to allow for additional capacity as needed by the customers. In cases where a fiber build is not proposed, operating leases from our existing partners will be utilized to provide the last mile portions of the network.

2.) Supplements to the Existing DWDM Network: A DWDM system is part of the core transport network used by SDN Communications. Networks currently used are Ciena and Infinera. Some portions of these networks will be upgraded in capacity. These upgrades will account of the additional traffic generated by the additional end points within our application. These system additions were selected as part of our application to leverage the existing infrastructure. Both the Ciena and Infinera networks can have additional wavelengths added to the systems to upgrade their total capacity. The DWDM network also provides for geographically diverse fiber routes to improve the reliability of the proposed network.

3.) MPLS Network: An MPLS network is also part of the core network allowing SDN's customers who are riding the network the ability to have the dedicated circuits they require.

4.) Additional Aggregation node Capacity: Ethernet aggregation points have been strategically placed throughout the network to provide aggregation of the proposed Ethernet services. The aggregation locations have been determined by our existing traffic patterns and placed where they can most effectively access the core DWDM backbone network.

5.) Network Endpoints: The network endpoints within the system will be small Ethernet switches that allow the circuit to be terminated via fiber and handed to the customers' equipment. These devices require the ability to be remotely managed allowing for end-to-end testing of the circuits. Currently SDN Communications utilizes equipment from Cisco for the network end points. SDN would continue utilizing similar equipment as the management system and network operations are familiar with these devices.

Components already in place and not part of grant costs

6.) Core router: The core router in our proposed network is existing and is located at the SDN headquarters in Sioux Falls, SD.

Specific Advantages: The proposed system offers several advantages for both SDN and the end users of the network. From the SDN standpoint, bringing all of the last mile services to schools on to the same platform will provide operation efficiencies that cannot be realized in the current environment.

Fiber systems were chosen over copper based systems because of its ability to deliver high bandwidths at an increased speed. Copper is not effective at delivering symmetrical high bandwidth circuits.

Some of the loops in the project may be long and fiber will allow the same level of technology for all customers.

We have chosen these technologies since they are primarily additions to our existing system. We believe this provides for a very cost-effective, high bandwidth solution for the end users.

Additionally, many of the schools throughout our service territory have been requesting Ethernet based services for some time. There are locations currently served on TDM based networks, and would like to upgrade their own internal infrastructure to Ethernet based to become more cost effective within their systems.

The network also provides dedicated connectivity between schools, which can be utilized throughout the school system to provide additional distance learning capabilities.

Paths to upgrade:

The core DWDM network can be easily upgraded by adding additional wavelengths to the network. In the Ciena platform, wavelengths are added at 2.5 Gbps per wavelength, and the Infinera system allows us to upgrade in 10 Gbps increments. Since the proposed system is fiber based to the end users, upgrades to capacity up to 1 Gbps can be done through software, thus providing a system that should serve these anchor institutions for many years to come.

35. Licenses, Regulatory Approvals and Agreements:

SDN Communications currently has the following FCC and South Dakota PUC authorizations, regulatory codes, interconnection agreements, tariffs and PSTN databases in place.

- Certificate of Authority from the South Dakota Public Utilities Commission to provide access and long distance services
- Certificate of Existence – Limited Liability Company from the South Dakota Secretary of State
- Federal Communications Commission 214 Authority to provide telecommunications services
- South Dakota Access Tariff approved by the SDPUC
- FCC Interstate Access Tariff No. 1
- Interconnection Agreement with Qwest Corporation
- Internet backbone peering agreements with AT&T, Sprint, and Cogent
- ICSC and ACNA codes
- Agreements in place for operator and directory assistance; long distance resale; 8XX LIDB, LNP (CNAM) and other database access; SS7 trunking.

- All required CLLI, OCN, RAO codes
- Routes and meet points entered in the LERG
- Compliant with broadband and narrowband CALEA, CPNI and Red Flag requirements

In addition, SDN has lease agreements in place with its member LECs for lease of local loops to connect with community anchor sites, critical community sites and public safety sites.

For new fiber cable construction, SDN will require railroad crossing and Army Corps of Engineers navigable streams and river crossing permits. SDN has routinely obtained these types of permits within project construction timelines throughout construction of its existing 21,000 mile network.

36. Construction and Vendor Contracts

SDN Communications will utilize outside contractors for fiber cable construction and splicing, electronic equipment installation, and engineering design and project management.

SDN will use Engbarth Directional Drilling, Inc. (EDD) for fiber cable construction. EDD has provided similar services to SDN for five years including the construction for SDN's REED network in 2008. SDN and EDD have executed a Letter of Intent (LOI) to engage in this project together.

SDN will use Wiltech for fiber cable splicing. Wiltech has provided similar services to SDN for ten years including the splicing for SDN's REED network in 2008. SDN and Wiltech have executed a Letter of Intent (LOI) to engage in this project together.

SDN will use Martin Group, Inc. (MG) for electronic equipment installation, engineering design and project management services. MG has provided similar services to SDN for 20 years including the engineering design and project management for SDN's REED network in 2008. SDN and MG have executed a Letter of Intent (LOI) to engage in this project together.

The general text of the LOI for all required contractors is as follows:

This letter expresses the interest of Contractor (“Contractor”) to provide engineering design, installation and project management services to ILEC (ILEC) in connection with its bid for a grant from the BTOP program. This letter shall not constitute a commitment or obligation of

37. Management Team Resumes:

Please refer to upload section at the end of the document.

38. Organizational Readiness:

SDN Communications and its member companies have in the last two decades delivered telecommunication services to a statewide customer base. All the components necessary to sell, install and maintain broadband services are in place. Business practices are constantly refined to provide a more effective operation. The result is a company recognized as a state leader in telecommunications. Additionally, it is fiscally sound with the revenues needed to continue business into the future.

Overall responsibility for the direction of SDN Communications is through a board of directors that is comprised of representatives from the 27 member companies. The CEO works directly with the board in policy decisions and monitoring the financial status of the company. The management team members, whose expertise and roles were described in item 37, manage a workforce of 120 employees. In addition, the team works with the management staff of the individual member companies.

Much of work done by SDN is on behalf of all of the owner companies. Three divisions work directly with hardware issues in creating the network and providing connectivity to customers. The sales and engineering staff work with the customer to decide the specific needs for connectivity and equipment. They also collaborate with the local owner company. The network technicians and engineers build the middle mile network and end-point circuitry. The network technicians and circuit provisioning staff are the third group that works with end-point issues to connect the customer. Altogether, the company has in place 21,000 miles of network connecting statewide with 549 accounts each representing thousands of end points.

The business is supported by a sales force positioned across the state to secure customers. Marketing is assisted by an upbeat website www.sdncommunications.com that makes it clear the customer is king and the services offered are the latest in technology.

Once customers are online, the accounting department of SDN bills the customers and then sends revenues to each of the member companies based on their share of the network provided. Each customer is touched several times by the different divisions of SDN Communications. State of the art telecommunication service is important for all businesses and customers but it also is a service that can stress to the maximum the end user. The interactions of SDN with multiple layers of customers enjoy an 87% customer satisfaction record.

Last, SDN is a leader in innovation in technology. Besides good customer service, the company is constantly seeking to use cutting-edge technology to bring to South Dakota the best broadband service available.

41. Government and other Key Partnerships:

The purpose of Project Connect South Dakota is to build on a successful system to extend needed broadband speeds to communities and institutions that otherwise do not have the means to secure it themselves. The project goals are mirrored in the partnerships with Sanford and Avera health care systems. As described in their letters of support, SDN has a long and successful customer relationship with both entities. Both systems are supplying to South Dakota communities medical services that require high speed connectivity. Both struggle to secure the resources needed to successfully operate the latest in telemedicine technology for their systems. Project Connect funds will enable SDN to bring these providers the needed broadband speeds that enable them to upgrade medical services to thousands of patients. The immediate benefit is there will be no lost time in getting the system running because of the already established partnership.

Mitchell Technical Institute (MTI) provides a business and educator partnership that could serve as a model for other areas. Project Connect secures funds to provide MTI state-of-the-art technology and equipment that the institution lacks funds to purchase. This in turn will help MTI attract the best teachers and provide students with training for the technical jobs being created by increased broadband access. MIT will also assist SDN and its member companies by providing continuing education and training for existing technical staff.

Finally, SDN Communications is pleased that all of the members of the South Dakota Congressional delegation are supporting the goals of Project Connect South Dakota.

42. Recovery Act and Other Governmental Collaboration.

Connect South Dakota will provide the following last mile Broadband Infrastructure Program (BIP) applications with state-of-the-art, high speed connections to the public Internet at affordable rates. The BIP has an ARRA value of $2.5 billion.

Stateline Telecommunications Morristown, McIntosh and Timber Lake FTTP Project
SSTelecom Rural Milbank FTTP Project

Western Telephone Co. – Cresbard, Orient, and Faulkton SD FTTP

Stateline, SSTelecom and Western customers will have access to the Internet at reasonable costs and speeds that will enable medical, educational, governmental and commercial applications to perform properly.

In addition, Connect South Dakota will provide state-of-the-art, high speed connections for 300 Sanford healthcare facilities in South Dakota included in Sanford Health’s NTIA Public Computer Centers Program (PCCP) application entitled “Broadband Access to Improve Health Status”. The PCCP has an ARRA value of $200 million.

Sanford Health's community hospitals will expand public access to broadband service in rural communities by providing public computer workstations and guest wireless access in the community hospitals. Broadband internet access is lacking in many rural areas of South Dakota and the surrounding states. The availability of broadband service in the community hospitals will give patients, families, and community members access to valuable health care information.

Sustainability

46. Reasonableness

The project costs included in this middle mile application are based on material and labor costs that SDN paid for the construction of South Dakota's Research, Education and Economic Development (REED) network in 2008. The REED network deployed over 700 miles of new fiber with state-of-the-art high capacity backbone electronics. The Connect South Dakota project will use similar fiber cable and electronics to expand its reach to additional sites throughout the state.

Given the Recovery Act's extension of the Davis-Bacon prevailing wages requirement to communications network construction, the 2008 labor rates for fiber construction have been increased to match the South Dakota Department of Labor statistics for South Dakota Statewide counties wages plus benefits. In addition, the fiber cable construction costs have also been increased to allow for increased material costs and some demand stimulation.

No cost adjustments for electronics are required due to SDN's ability to purchase additional equipment at prices set in existing contracts with the electronics vendors.

The number of units for electronic equipment is based upon the number of end points in the project.

The number of units for fiber optic construction for the Huron to Volga and Beresford rural to Yankton builds is based on an engineering design. The number of units for fiber optic construction to connect community anchor institutions to the backbone network is based on prioritization of an inventory of over 1,900 sites in South Dakota. The prioritized list of sites in Connect South Dakota was divided into two groups – sites with existing fiber and sites requiring new fiber. For the sites requiring new fiber the number of construction units per site was estimated based on SDN's and its member companies' knowledge of the site locations relative to the existing fiber network in each community.

WHEREAS, SDN has developed an application to connect approximately 350 community critical anchor locations (the “Project”), including schools, government buildings, hospitals, and national guard facilities across the State of South Dakota, by building fiber cable and providing electronics to said sites, and will seek broadband stimulus funding from the United States Government’s Broadband Technology Opportunities Program (“BTOP”) for such network; and

WHEREAS, the estimated cost of the Project is $27 million; and

WHEREAS, the application requests 80% of the Project’s cost in the form of a grant and SDN will be obligated to provide equity funding for up to 20% of the Project’s costs, upon successful submission of a stimulus application by SDN, award of a grant as submitted and SDN’s signature on Form CD-450 within the timelines stated in the Notice Of Funding Availability dated July 9, 2009;

- a. Cash: $ 5,143,061.00
- b. In-Kind: $.00
- c. Percent of Total Project Cost: 20

53. Demonstration of Financial Need:

Without BTOP funding, SDN would not have the funds necessary to build the infrastructure to connect the critical anchor institutions outlined in the application. If SDN relies on a conventional loan for this project, there would be annual substantial cash flow shortages. In order to avoid a cash shortfall during the five year pro forma, SDN would require a line of credit over $20,000,000. In addition to the cash shortfall, the borrowing, for both the project and cash flow necessary for the project, would show a net loss in Year 5 of the pro forma. It is anticipated that this trend would continue for the next several years beyond the 5 year forecast adversely affecting SDN's ability to upgrade, operate and maintain the existing network. The 1.0-1.25 TIER (Times Interest Earned Ratio) required by lending institutions cannot be met by SDN. Based on this information, SDN would not be able to complete this project without BTOP funding. As stated throughout this application, this project is vital to the economic well being of the citizens of the state of South Dakota.

Other than BTOP funds requested in this application, SDN is not receiving any other Federal monies for Project Connect South Dakota. There will be no application to any other Federal agency or program to help defray the costs for this project.
